

TowerJazz Received Indications of Strong Demand for its Offer of Accelerated Conversion of its Existing Convertible Bonds Series F; Amended Its Offer to Accept Up To $80 Million

March 19, 2015

The Accelerated Conversion Is Designed to Reduce the Company's Cost Over the Lifetime of the Series F Convertible Bonds, Decrease Existing Convertible Debt and Coupon Payments, Increase Profitability, Strengthen the Balance Sheet and Associated Financial Ratios

MIGDAL HAEMEK, Israel, March 19, 2015 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- TowerJazz, the global specialty foundry leader, today announced that following indications of strong demand for the accelerated conversion of its outstanding Series F convertible bonds, the Company has agreed to increase the amount of bonds eligible for this offer from 33% to approximately 67% of its outstanding convertible bonds and to update the conversion premium under the offer. The Company believes that these amended terms will further benefit the Company and its shareholders, by increasing the Company's operating and financial flexibility, reduce interest expenses, increase profitability, strengthen the balance sheet and associated financial ratios and simplify the Company's capital structure.

The Series F convertible bonds issued in 2010 and 2012 carry a coupon of 7.8% and a conversion ratio of approximately $10 per share. The outstanding amount of these Series F convertible bonds is approximately $120 million with 4 semi-annual coupons remaining payable in cash during 2015 and 2016 totaling approximately $15 million, assuming the debenture holders do not convert prior to the final maturity date.

The terms of these convertible bonds do not enable the Company to force early repayment, early redemption or early conversion. However, through this public structured offer, the Company can enable all holders of Series F convertible bonds to accelerate the exchange of at least a portion of their Series F bonds into shares.

The Company will publish an amended supplemental shelf offering report and shelf take down document in Israel in which it will limit the offer to approximately $80 million of its existing Series F convertible bonds. The shares underlying these convertibles are already included in the Company's diluted share count since their issuance in 2010 and 2012. If demand exceeds the approximate $80 million limit, such demand will be allocated pro rata among tendering holders within the limit. In order to execute the accelerated conversion and save the remaining 4 future coupon payments totaling 15.6% of the bonds' par value over the coming two years, amounting to $10 million, the Company is offering the holders a conversion premium of approximately 4%, based on the current TASE trading prices, reflecting a premium of the bonds' trading price in TASE over the underlying shares' market price.

All holders of Series F convertibles can, through March 25, 2015, decide whether to participate in the accelerated conversion. No bondholder has any obligation to agree to the offer. The offer will be covered by the Israeli shelf prospectus filed in February 2013, as amended to reflect this offer and any subsequent shelf take down filing which will disclose the detailed terms. The Company may change the amount and terms during the offering period and any change will be publicly announced as required by applicable law.
