Commission File No. 001-32832

On August 20, 2008, Tower released a press release including the following statements:

Russell Ellwanger, Tower's chief executive officer, stated "Over the past few years, Tower has substantially improved its revenue and operational results as evidenced by becoming the number one revenue growth foundry for 2007 over 2005. Today's announcement of a memorandum of understanding signed with our banks and Israel Corporation provides a much stronger corporate capital structure from which we can continue this momentum. We expect that these financial improvements combined with the expected closing of the Jazz merger will maintain our growth trajectory, while substantially improving EBITDA and cash generation in the course of transitioning into the worldwide leading specialty foundry."

"The response from both the Jazz and Tower customers with regard to the combined product platform offerings and roadmaps has been overwhelmingly positive, and we have begun to leverage the cross-selling opportunities through joint meetings with customers of both companies. Integration efforts are well underway in anticipation of the completion of the transaction by the end of this quarter. We have established an inter-company cross-functional team tasked with ensuring a seamless transition, and we expect to realize approximately $40 million in annual cost savings from the Jazz merger."

As previously disclosed, Tower announced a definitive agreement to acquire Jazz Technologies, which will create a leading specialty pure-play foundry with trailing twelve month revenues of approximately $440 million. Additionally, the merger will significantly increase the Company's scale, providing the opportunity for substantial growth in revenue, cash flow and operating results. The proposed transaction is subject to approval by Jazz's shareholders and other customary closing conditions. Jazz announced that August 8, 2008 will serve as the record date for a special meeting of shareholders, which will be convened on September 17, 2008 to vote on, adopt and approve the proposed transaction, with the closing of the transaction expected to occur prior to the end of the third quarter of 2008.
